Aramaic

Alphabet

Kit Johnstone Tyabandha, Ph.D.

My work for the transliteration of Aramaic, which I tried to make isomorphic with the original alphabets for language engineering purposes, began in May 2008, possibly 26 May. Because of a transnational cult targetting me and murdering off other people including my dad, one of the things they were doing was plagiarising my ideas and works. If this work also is plagiarised it could have been during my stay at a then Aspire on Paisley Road West in 2012, and could have been for the purpose of producing some slave Ph.D. or furthering an academic of the cult's people.

Traditionally there are three sets of alphabets, namely 'Esṭrāngelāḣ (Estrangela), Kaldāyāḣ (Chaldean) (Eastern) and Pśiṭāḣ (Pshittha) (Western). Unless otherwise stated words in this section are spelt in Eastern Aramaic.
